DARRAN O'SULLIVAN is sporting a new look.

The four-time All-Ireland winner with Kerry recently underwent a hair transplant procedure - and the results are impressive.

Kerry legend Darran O'Sullivan

He admitted losing his hair affected his confidence and spent time researching the possibility of a hair transplant before finally going for it.

He said: "I'd done my research from different websites but after talking to Dr. Nel and learning more about the process, I was very confident and couldn't wait to get started."

"The procedure itself was pain free, I was very relaxed. I remember the build-up to the procedure and having a laugh and a joke with Dr. Nel and his team throughout the day.

"They had me put at ease. It wasn't anything like I was fearing. It felt effortless for me.

"The recovery period was very good. I did everything Dr. Nel had advised me to do which worked a treat.

"I minded it and it healed up very quickly and I think I left it about 10 days before I went back to the gym.

"I wanted to just give it the proper amount of time to recover so I wasn't putting myself under any extra pressure.

"I started seeing results then within a few months."

Following the procedure, O'Sullivan noticed a big difference in both his confidence and how he felt people treated him.

He said: "I think people started to notice a difference after the first couple of months when the results started to show.

"Definitely after a year when the results were strong, I had a lot of people saying it to me, but I suppose when you get the hair transplant done it starts to get thicker and you start to look younger so I had a good few people make some positive comments about that.

"I would say it's made quite a big difference in my life. When you start to notice your hair thinning out a small bit you get a bit more conscious, and maybe a bit more paranoid about it, and since I got it done I don't worry about it anymore and my confidence has risen as well with it."
